09/333963

ABSTRACT

An image processing apparatus collectively manages a variety of image processings. Among the image processings, there are specially designated image processings. If a combination of specially designated image processings which are not mutually compatible is designated, one of the mutually incompatible image processings is rendered invalid. Therefore, the image processing apparatus is able to carry out image processings under appropriate conditions.

09333963 .061599